IN THE KITCHEN
There are more and more sponges piling up in the storage basket —there might be over twenty by now. But who do they actually belong to? I can hardly recall seeing anyone ever taking one out.
Sometimes the sink feels like a storage cabinet too—you can see bowls belonging to different people stacked one on top of another.
The sponges are lining up, forming a little gathering zone by the sink—their relationships seem even closer than ours.

THIS ONE
BELONGS TO MY FRIEND.
THIS ONE'S FROM THE GUY
IN THE ROOM OPPOSITE MINE.
THIS ONE'S
THE GIRL LIVING IN ROOM F.
THIS ONE'S FROM THE GUY
IN THE ROOM OPPOSITE MINE.
THIS ONE
BELONGS TO A COUPLE.
THIS ONE'S
FROM AN INDIAN GIRL.
THIS ONE'S
A CHINESE GUY'S.
THIS ONE'S
FROM AN UNDERGRAD GIRL.
THIS ONE PROBABLY
BELONGS TO THE GUY IN ROOM C.
WHOSE IS THIS?
AND THIS ONE?
THIS ONE'S MINE.
